

Daycare and Family Are Targets of Injured Baby Investigation

Nov. 17, 2003

A baby in intensive care with severe -brain injury is holding on, as authorities investigate his family and his day care.

Doctors say one-year-old Nathan Molineux was either severely -shaken, or received a strong blow to the head.

Nathan's father says he dropped his two children off at a licensed day care in Park City Friday morning.

A few hours later, he was told his baby stopped -breathing.

The Summit County Sheriff's Department is investigating the daycare, and the baby's family, to determine what happened.

As standard procedure, the Division of Child and Family Services... -removed the baby's older brother from the home during the investigation.

James Molineux/Dad: "THEY DON'T KNOW IF HE'S GOING TO LIVE. IF HE DOES.. WHAT HIS PROBLEMS ARE GOING TO BE WITH LIFE. HE'S NEVER GOING TO BE THE SAME"

The care provider told investigators the boy woke up from a nap with an unusual -cry and then appeared not to breath.